Assoc. Prof. Dr. Mustafa AYDIN

Istanbul Aydın University President

Today more than ever, there is a need for a generation that can respond to the expectations of society, dominate the use of information and technology, speak at least one foreign language in business life, research, inquire, and produce; renew itself in every area as well as the information necessary for life, that is participant, can think and work independently in universal dimensions.

Istanbul Aydın University is a higher education institution that will bring you the knowledge, awareness, entrepreneurial, and creative spirit that the 21st century requires with its expert teaching staff, privileged, contemporary, and constantly renewed programs, vocational English language preparatory school implemented for the first time in Turkey, contemporary technical equipment, ergonomic physical structure, distinguished solution partners, international education cooperation, freedom of unlimited learning which provides undergraduate education and its continuing education process, and its rich social structure.

MESSAGE FROM THE INTERNATIONAL OFFICE

December '23

Prof. Dr. Zafer ASLAN
Director International Relations

"In the pursuit of education and global engagement, our university stands as a beacon of inspiration and opportunity."

It gives me great pride that our students have taken the initiative of publishing a university magazine for the international community. A magazine for international students is essential as it creates a sense of community, shares valuable information, and promotes cross-cultural understanding, fostering an inclusive and enriched campus environment.

Vice Director International Relations
Management

"At IAU, our goal is to shape global citizens"

It gives me great pride that our international students have taken the initiative of publishing a university magazine for the international community. A magazine for international students is essential as it creates a sense of unity within the community, shares valuable information, and promotes cross-cultural understanding, fostering an inclusive and diverse campus environment.

Muatasem B. Alkhouli
ISU President

The International Student Union has catered to multiple foreign student communities and has established an atmosphere where international students feel represented and accepted at Istanbul Aydin University. I wanted to be a part of a goal that prioritizes foreign students and their needs, a goal that embraces our many cultures and aids the integration of these foreign cultures within our new home, Turkey.

With SPOTLIGHT MAGAZINE we aim to be the ultimate guide for our students at Istanbul Aydin University. Our goal is to reach international students and provide them with important information from all around our university while keeping the fun included.

AUNTIE ZUBEYDA'S CAT-EYE VIEW

FROM OUR TOP COLUMNIST

Dear Humans and Fellow Feline Admirers, Meow-gnificent greetings from your favorite campus cat, Aunty Zubeyda! As the leaves dance their way to the ground and the air becomes crisper, I, too, find myself facing the inevitable chill of winter. Yes, I may boast a luxurious fur coat, but even Aunty Zubeyda can't deny that the impending cold has me yearning for cozy spots and warm laps. Speaking of laps, it seems the end of midterms has brought a collective sigh of relief across the campus. The stress in the air was intense, and I couldn't help but offer my purr-sonal brand of therapeutic support to students buried in books. Now that the exams are over, I've noticed a shift in the atmosphere – a mix of exhaustion and anticipation.

The International Student Union had grand plans for an opening ceremony. Alas, the specter of midterms loomed large, putting those festivities on paw-se. Fear not, dear humans, for I've heard whispers of rescheduled events that promise to warm not only my furry heart but also the entire campus.

The IAU-MUN's Orientation Ceremony was another casualty of the midterm madness. The absence of spirited debates and diplomatic exchanges left me yearning for the intellectual buzz. But fret not, diplomats, for I heard the IAUMUN club talking about rescheduling the orientation.

As the days grow shorter and the temperature drops, I implore you to cherish the warmth of friendships and camaraderie. Seek refuge in the comforting aroma of hot Çay and coffee, and perhaps consider sharing a cozy blanket with a friendly feline (hint, hint). Remember, winter may be cold, but the bonds we forge are the true source of warmth.

Until next time, may your days be filled with joy, your nights with peaceful dreams, and your hearts with the purr-sistence to face whatever challenges lie ahead.

Paw-sitively yours,
Aunty Zubeyda

MEET OUR ALUMNI

A journey that spans from the streets of Damascus to the cityscape of Riyadh, and finally to the rich culture of Istanbul, Alaa Almerstani emerged as a beacon of determination and creativity. His story, a fusion of cultural adaptation and unwavering passion, shows the transformative power of pursuing one's dreams. Alaa, now 23, arrived in Turkey in 2019. "I thought I might stay here in Turkey, so I knew I had to learn the language," he shared, as he attempted to express the uncertainty of his future paired with a mandatory challenge at the time.

Alaa, now 23, arrived in Turkey in 2019. "I thought I might stay here in Turkey, so I knew I had to learn the language," he shared, as he attempted to express the uncertainty of his future paired with a mandatory challenge at the time. Little did he know that this decision to learn the language would shape not only his linguistic skills but also his entire trajectory in the world of media.

Enrolling at Istanbul Aydın University (IAU), Alaa, armed with a simple understanding of BI Turkish, or "the kind of Turkish that fulfilled day to day needs" as Alaa described it, embarked on a journey that extended beyond academic pursuits. He fully immersed himself in the 'university life', explored different clubs and joined the Syrian community where he assumed the role of head of PR Media. His friends, predominantly Turkish, proved to be invaluable allies, aiding him in navigating linguistic nuances with unwavering support. He joyfully stated, "My friends were all Turkish and I was the only Syrian but I'm lucky cause they were very helpful. They helped me all 4 years". He went on to add that "they didn't laugh at me and they never let me go without teaching me the correct way to say something." "I wanted to be the famous guy with money and cars and everyone loves him Had some subscribers but that gave him some guts.

"when I saw this department in university it immediately clicked in my head that I wanted to be a director." Before the allure of cinematic arts beckoned, Alaa had already left a digital footprint. His YouTube channel, boasting over 600,000 views, initially reflected aspirations of fame and opulence. "I wanted to be the famous guy with money and cars", he laughed. However, he stumbled upon the department of Radio-Tele-Cinema and that reshaped his dreams as he started pondering over the possibility of becoming a director.

MEET OUR ALUMNI

Navigating exams posed a unique challenge due to language barriers, but Alaa seized opportunities outside the classroom. "Books were boring; what I loved was holding cameras and lights. I succeeded more in those," he confessed, mirroring the timeless struggle between academic expectations and individual passions.

The language barriers during exams proved to be a major challenge, but Alaa's remained resilient. Beyond the confines of the classroom, he pioneered "Atolye Aydin," a film crew and university streaming initiative. The tangible impact of his work, coupled with the professor's resounding "bravo," painted a vivid picture of triumph in the face of difficulty.

He went on to add that "they didn't laugh at me and they never let me go without teaching me the correct way to say something." Amidst occasional encounters with unsupportive professors, Alaa's unwavering spirit remained undaunted. "No regrets," he affirmed, recognizing the transformative power embedded in challenges that fortified his ability to communicate and seek solutions.

In the ceaseless evolution of the media landscape, Alaa imparts wisdom to fellow students: "There is nothing called perfection. You have to deal with it somehow, and you have to seek help. Everyone needs someone, or they will fail. Friends, family, peers."

Alaa Almerstani's saga transcends the realm of academia; it is an opulent tapestry of dreams and resilience, painted against the canvas of life's intricate intricacies. As he continues to sculpt dreams behind the camera, Alaa stands as a living testament to the indomitable human spirit, inviting others to dare to dream beyond the confines of textbooks and classrooms.

Advice for students:

"I made so many videos here while studying here a lot of views started to get curious about what I do so a lot of them choose the same department as me cause of the videos I make"

THE IAU EXCHANGE EXPERIENCE

Erasmus Institutional Coordinator
MARIANA ASTEFANOAIÈ

HOW SIGNIFICANT IS ERASMUS IN FOSTERING GLOBAL DIVERSITY AND CONTRIBUTING TO INTERNATIONAL UNITY?

Erasmus plays a crucial role in promoting global diversity by fostering international collaboration among students. It contributes significantly to enhancing international unity by facilitating cultural exchange and understanding.

INCOMING STUDENT

Alex Tobreluts, a devoted 21-year-old business/marketing student arriving from the Estonian Entrepreneurship University of Applied Sciences in Tallinn, Estonia, states that he has just started living a dream he had envisioned years ago. His narrative undoubtedly serves as an inspiration for everyone around him and deserves to be told. In 8th grade, Alex traveled to Russia and found himself captivated by the culture and admired the way he was treated by the locals. "I knew at that moment, I wanted to explore the world. I wanted to meet new cultures and have connections all over the world", Alex stated. He then illuminated his inability to take any steps towards his dream due to a lack of opportunities as a high school student; however, once he became a university student, he enthusiastically assured himself: "This is it! This is my chance right now to start this amazing journey!"

He shared with us the reasons behind his choice to come to Türkiye and it was at that point that Alex revealed he dealt with boats and had his own company back home; hence, he was aware that he needed to go to a coastal, warm country. Alex had several options to consider; Greece, Italy, Spain, and Portugal to name a few but after thorough research and discussions with friends and family, it quickly became apparent to him that Türkiye was the ideal destination. Istanbul, a vibrant mix of cultures and ethnicities, presents numerous opportunities. This makes it the perfect match for Alex, given his strong desire to explore diverse cultures. Additionally, his love for Turkish kebab played a crucial role in influencing his decision.

Afterward, Alex described the academic environment at Istanbul Aydın University as a "dream place" for him. The warmth of the people and the hospitality in Türkiye changed his perspective. Initially, he believed it would be a rigid environment focused solely on continuous studying with limited freedom. Getting accustomed to the atmosphere and engaging in the local culture was effortless for him. Alex, self-portrayed as an open person, revels in discovering new things: "The world is so big and I have to learn everything from everybody"

Thereafter, we were captivated by the marvelous tale Alex had to tell about his adventures uncovering different corners of Istanbul. From being fascinated by the Muslim culture and the fabulous mosques, their architecture, big ceilings, and ornamented windows to a state of astonishment by the incredible negotiations and bargaining at the Grand Bazaar. According to Alex, The Grand Bazaar is a must-visit for every exchange student, as roving around such an outstanding place takes you to a completely different dimension. When we went on to discuss the hardships he had to go through in order to take the first step toward his dream, Alex clarified that he was behind his friends in the English language and was constantly put down by them.

Nevertheless, with persistence and determination, Alex remained steadfast and refused to give in. Days and nights of diligent effort were slipping away, and when the time came to take the test for his admission to Istanbul Aydin University, Alex got C1 level in English, eagerly he expressed that he never, not for a single moment, thought of giving up. "I think that the biggest growth in my personality is that I'm thinking in English," he added later on. Not only did Alex start to think in English but he was also introduced to early mornings. Istanbul is a city that never rests, but there's a noticeable shift in atmosphere at 5 AM. "I can be with my own thoughts," he stated. While at home, you always have mixed ideas and feelings, except, contemplating in solitude enables you to visualize and strategize for the day ahead.

While Alex highlighted the tranquility of early mornings, he still finds pleasure in the company of friends. Describing himself as an extrovert, he relishes social activities to the fullest. "The mentors of the Erasmus Club are doing an amazing job..." he remarked. Alex strives to evolve into a superior version of himself, continuously seeking improvement in every possible aspect. His positive attitude and dedication set a great example for everyone around him. "Just do it. Stepping out of your comfort zone, discovering more about yourself, and connecting with people from around the world are valuable and significant ways to boost personal growth". He wishes to convey these words to students considering the Erasmus program. Alex is currently resuming his semester at Istanbul Aydin University, his journey to discover the world and unlock new places, memories, and make acquaintances all over the world has just started and will not end anytime soon.

OUTGOING STUDENT

In pursuit of self-discovery, Egehan Atbakan's life unfolds as a narrative marked by solo hikes, cultural immersion, resilience, and his beautiful, long brown hair. These elements together encapsulate an essential part of his individuality and the experiences that shape his journey. Egehan was initially a student of history doing his bachelor's at Istanbul University but his academic journey took an unexpected turn, ultimately leading him to Istanbul Aydin University in pursuit of a second bachelor. 2018 marks Egehan's year of transformations, he ironically describes it as being both the "best and worst year" of his life. This journey commences when an Erasmus exchange program opportunity knocks on his door. Being an introvert Egehan found socializing a difficult task, so to him, Erasmus meant a fresh start; his means for some needed personal growth.

Even before he could embark on his journey, he got diagnosed with cancer. However, the cancer was detected at an early stage and the doctor gave him the green light to proceed with his travel plans soon after successfully removing the tumor, allowing him to embark on a semester-long journey studying History at Ionian University in Corfu, Greece. In Egehan's own words, Greece is "the key turning point" of his life. The Erasmus program thrust him beyond the borders of Turkey for the first time, allowing him to navigate experiences like staying in a hotel for the first time, boarding a plane for the first time, and even conversing in English for the first time – an initially daunting task given his rudimentary language skills. This process of learning a new language provided him the much-needed clarity in his academic realm.

"I realized that I did not want to study more of history because it was leading me nowhere," Egehan went on to embrace the world of languages, pursuing a degree in languages and translation at IAU, a decision that has led him to his current role as a freelance translator and a part-time English teacher. Greece, marked by Egehan's series of firsts, the cultural similarities, the experiences, and the friendships that fostered remain a warm memory. He bid farewell to Greece with a mix of tears and reluctance and upon coming back, relieved, he soon realized his transformative journey was in fact not confined to a specific place but had become an integral part of him, "It's not the place, it's me, I am the main character of my life".

In Istanbul yet another challenge awaited him, the cancer was back and this time it had spread to his lungs. Egehan faced months of chemotherapy, enduring the physical and mental toll that came along, including losing his hair that he had spent all these years growing. Today, he stands resilient and cancer-free, resuming his pursuit of knowledge and personal growth. Beyond his professional pursuits, Egehan's passion for solo hikes remains a personal retreat, "It's only me; I can do whatever I want," sometimes I scream in the middle of the jungle...". His passion for hiking, highlighted by the freedom it affords him, serves as the testament to his belief that "life is a marathon, not a race" – a sentiment that echoes in both his professional and personal pursuits.

The interview unfolded various chapters of Egehan's life, including his second Erasmus where he spent a semester in Katowice, Poland, at the University of Silesia, studying English. The extreme cold, architectural shift, and cultural differences including the reserved hard to read demeanor of Eastern European people, made Poland a more distant place. While initially captivated by the architectural continuity, he eventually found the lack of diversity in the landscape somewhat dull, "there's not much to look and make fun of even if it means there are no ugly buildings, if you see an ugly building in Istanbul, you say who the hell builds this and why, but you don't even see that there and it gets so dull, so plain for someone who was born and raised in Istanbul all his life" he expressed. However, eventually he did get used to Poland and although a contrast to his warm stay in Greece, Poland was a just a different experience "but after two months I got used to it, I accepted it and it was actually not a bad thing too, it's just cultural difference".

Spanning Poland and Greece, Egehan's Erasmus experiences unfold as chapters rich with cultural insights. From Rixa, a German vintage bike he bought in Poland that became his close companion, to his stay with a diverse group of German, Spanish, and Finnish roommates in Greece, to form a close friendship with Agneshia (Aga), a Polish girl, his Erasmus experiences were not just about academics; they were about forging lasting connections. Each connection adds a unique layer to Egehan's story. Reflecting on his varied experiences, Egehan's journey embodies continuous growth, resilience, cultural exploration, and a deep connection with nature and humanity.

HOROSCOPES

FACULTY OF LAW

Ready, Set, Litigate!

Channel your inner legal psychic and prepare for the upcoming weeks. Make practicality your mantra, while others might sit in their LaLa land you can't afford to get distracted so don't allow your focus to dilate and keep working hard.

FACULTY OF FINE ARTS

The world is your canvas so keep painting. Don't be afraid to let your creative messy side break free. Embrace the eccentric, not all ideas hold equal potential and know that sometimes the weirdest ones turn out to be the true masterpieces.

FACULTY OF MEDICINE

Steady as a surgeon's hand, your patience and work commitment are the adrenaline shots that will indeed take you very far.

Communication is your surgical scalp; your linguistic fitness makes you a standout healer. Embrace the healing touch and allow your words and empathy to be the remedy that fosters understanding.

FACULTY OF DENTISTRY

Watch your sugar intake, you might get a cavity!

While your midterms were demanding and left you drained, take comfort in the assurance that your effort will speak volumes. Sculpt those crowns and bridges with patience, and witness your dental artistry make a lasting impression. Put in the effort and let your passion shine brighter than a freshly polished enamel.

FACULTY OF ARCHITECTURE AND DESIGN

You are not a machine; burnouts are real, and you need to take a break before you completely exhaust yourself. Also keep your caffeine addiction in check and stop stressing over every little fluctuation; just ride the engineering emotional express and remember, even bridges have their shaky moments.

FACULTY OF ECONOMICS AND ADMIN. SCIENCES

You do realize that you are a student, right? Just because midterms are done doesn't mean you stop showing up to class. Save your attendance for emergencies and start going to class as you are missing out on the new topics. Remember that consistency is the key to be successful in any domain.

FACULTY OF ENGINEERING

You are not a machine; burnouts are real, and you need to take a break before you completely exhaust yourself. Also keep your caffeine addiction in check and stop stressing over every little fluctuation; just ride the engineering emotional express and remember, even bridges have their shaky moments.

FACULTY OF COMMUNICATION

There's nothing good food and a long conversation with your bestie can't fix so go out and spend some time with to your dear one. Savor a cup of warm tea and watch the sunrise over the Bosphorus. Should the opportunity present itself, go out of the way to do an extra good deed!

FACULTY OF HEALTH SCIENCES

Your energy is contagious! all that greens you have been consuming must have something to do behind it. Be mindful, the third Tuesday of this month promises to be chaotic, approach the day with optimism but stay on guard and steer clear of any encounters with rabbits.

FACULTY OF SPORTS SCIENCES

It's time to get back on track. Stop bingeing series on Netflix and eating so much junk. Get healthy and spend more time in real life away from the screens and maybe consider recommending that show to your other department's nerd friends, their GPA won't approve of it but they certainly need a break.

Caution- the Color pink could cause you great inconvenience

FACULTY OF EDUCATION

Be careful not to drown in your own creative ideas, be wary of swimming too deep and losing sight of the shore. Nitpicking at every idea can create a cycle of self-doubt. Calm down and allow time to do wonders for you, get to your classes on time and spend time with your dear ones.

FACULTY OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

Fret not, my beloved. Embrace the challenges posed by thy universe, and allow thy creativity to manifest in the interpretation of worldly matters. Delve into the literature's shadowed recesses, and unravel the mysteries of the world.

WE LOOK FORWARD TO ANSWERING YOUR QUESTIONS

ED ANSWERS

1 How can I get involved in extracurricular activities on campus?

Meet with the ISU and join student communities and sign up with clubs and keep yourself updated about all upcoming events and competitions!

2 Can you provide information on available scholarships or financial aid opportunities?

This university currently offers scholarships to Master's & PhD students at the time of enrollment. However, you're welcome to apply for a scholarship via UBIS or submit an appeal for a scholarship at the ISSA office. The university also offers a sibling discount if you and your sibling are both enrolled at IAU.

3 Are there student organizations focused on specific hobbies or interests?

International Students Union and Country Communities are responsible for the International Students events and affairs which is managed by ISSA. On the other hand, They're called clubs, and they're managed by SKS. Ask around and you'll definitely find one that best suits you and your interests.

4 What career services does the university provide to help students with job placement?

We have a career center in B block, right next to the IAU store. The university helps students with their mandatory work Placement but you need to request assistance before the term begins.

5 How can I find a suitable mentor or advisor within my field of study?

Every student is appointed a course advisor at yhr beginning of the semester, however we would advise you to build a healthy relationship with your professors and seniors and let them mentor you. Pick a mentor who is where you want to be in the distant future.

6 Can you recommend any quiet study spots on campus?

T block library is our personal favorite, however, you might also like the library in P block.

7 What mental health and counseling services are available to students?

We have mental health and psychology services on campus. Unfortunately these sessions are in Turkish.

8 Can you share tips for balancing academic and personal life effectively?

To balance academic and personal life, create a realistic schedule, set achievable goals, and don't forget to take breaks. Seek support from friends, family, or campus resources when needed.
